COULD EVERY COLLEGE CAMPUS IN AMERICA BE PRAYED FOR ON ONE DAY?

The Collegiate Day of Prayer (CDOP) is an annual day set aside to call Christians everywhere to united, fervent prayer for spiritual awakening among college students throughout America.

For 100 years from 1815-1915, churches across America united together to pray for revival on campus because they understood that college students would be the leaders of society. As these Christians prayed, the colleges of America experienced more seasons of revival than any nation in history. These revivals repeatedly transformed the spiritual atmosphere of our most influential academic institutions and resulted in thousands of students giving their lives to missions globally.

The CDOP is a partnership among many ministries to rekindle a collegiate day of prayer in our day, and to mobilize churches, parents and all Christians to pray for spiritual awakening and the dramatic advance of the gospel on our university campuses. Our vision is to see every campus in America “adopted” for prayer every year as we unite to pray on February 22, 2018.

Go to collegiatedayorprayer.com to find an interactive campus map to see which campuses are adopted and to register to pray for the campus(es) of your choice.
